Water Street, Apalachicola
Apalachicola will host the 17th Annual Apalachicola Antique & Classic Boat Show on Saturday, April 18, 2015. Antique boats, examples of classic and traditional vessels, workboats, and fiberglass and aluminum classics will all be on display throughout the day. This festival emphasizes the maritime history of our picturesque coastal town. Special highlights include home-built boats by skilled craftsmen, authentic oyster boats and workboats, antique outboard engines, plus antique automobiles and artist booths. The Apalachicola Maritime Museum will host tours of the Heritage, a 58-foot wooden Herreshoff-designed ketch and have demonstrations of steam engines with their beautiful antique steam powered vessels. The Apalachicola National Estuarine Research Reserve will have displays on the Apalachicola River and its flora and fauna, along with booths featuring: the Coast Guard Auxiliary, kids model boat building, the National Weather Service and boat building demonstration throughout the day.

The Apalachicola Traders' Canoe, a hand built 50-foot long vessel used between 1750-1850, recovered from the Apalachicola River will be on display at the Cotton Warehouse. Questions? ## APALACHICOLA RESERVE OFFERS LECTURE ON RATTLESNAKES

~Learn about island populations of the eastern diamondback rattlesnake on Cape St George~

Apalachicola National Research Reserve is offering an hour-long lecture about the local rattlesnake population on Thursday, April 2, at the Apalachicola Research Reserve Nature Center in Eastpoint. Mark Margres from Florida State University will discuss the ecology, evolution, and conservation of the eastern diamondback rattlesnake including the genetic basis of adaptation in snake venoms, particularly among island populations including Little St. George Island.

Mark Margres is a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Biological Science at Florida State University. Mark's dissertation research focuses on understanding the genetic basis of adaptation in snake venoms, particularly among island populations of the eastern diamondback rattlesnake. Mark has recently begun focusing on the interactions between rattlesnakes and their rodent prey on Little St. George Island. His talk about the population venomics of the eastern diamondback rattlesnake (Crotalus adamanteus) identifies selection-driven incipient speciation and will discuss the ecology, evolution, and conservation of the eastern diamondback rattlesnake, a species currently up for listing as threatened under the Endangered Species Act.

This lecture is free and registration is not required. For more information

Healthy Gulf / Healthy Communities

Healthy Gulf Healthy Communities (HGHC) consists of a team of biologists, psychologists, social scientists and members of affected communities. HGHC is ready to release findings from a research project to address the environmental, economical and emotional health concerns in Florida and Alabama Gulf Coast communities as a result of the 2010 Deepwater Horizon (DWH) oil spill. This important community event will focus on utilizing our experience to better prepare Gulf coast communities for future disasters.

The interactive 2015 HGHC Regional Forum will include discussions and reports on the following:

- Lessons learned in the five years since the DWH oil spill
- Research findings from project directors studying individual and family resiliency, community resiliency and seafood safety in impacted Gulf coast communities
- Current needs and gaps that continue in impacted communities

Help Bag Oysters!

Come help the Apalachicola National Estuarine Research Reserve (ANERR) fill mesh bags with oyster shells on the morning of Friday, April 3rd, 2015, from 9:00am-12:00pm at Scipio Creek Commercial Marina in Apalachicola. The bagged shells will be used to build a breakwater that will protect the shoreline of Cape (Little) St. George Island. The oyster breakwater will help dissipate wave action that erodes the shoreline. ANERR will also plant a living shoreline to reestablish a vegetative buffer on the shoreline. Living Shorelines provide shoreline stabilization using a combination of coastal native vegetation for sediment stabilization and breakwaters constructed of oyster shells, limestone rock, or other structures conducive to the natural environment.

Full Moon Climb

April 4, 2015 7:30 PM - 9:00 PM (ET)
The April Full Moon Climb at the Cape St. George Lighthouse on St. George Island will be held on Saturday, April 4, 2015. The Sunset/Full Moon Climb will take place from 7:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. and will include light hors d'oeuvres and a sparkling cider toast to the full moon. Cost is $15.00 for the general public and $10.00 for members of the St. George Lighthouse Association. The sun will set at 8:00 p.m. and the "Pink" moon will rise at 8:22 p.m. on April 4. This moon is named after the flower "grass pink" or "wild ground phlox," which is one of the first and most widespread flowers to bloom in the spring. After sunset, people are invited to climb to the top of the lighthouse for a breathtaking view of the full moon, as space and time permit. Cost is $10.00 for the general public and $5.00 for SGLA members. The Cape St. George Light is located in St. George Lighthouse Park at the

Panhandle Players presents Duck Hunter Shoots Angel

Friday, April 10 and Saturday, April 11 at 7:30 PM. Tickets are $15. Duck Hunter Shoots Angel is the story of two bumbling Alabama duck-hunting brothers who think they accidentally shot down an angel. Hailed by audiences as a comedy with a heartfelt message, the play follows the intersecting paths of the two guilt-ridden duck hunters (Royce Rolstad, III and Robbie Johnson), a depressed tabloid journalist (Henry Kozlowsky), his reluctant photographer (Don Denig), their crazed boss (Bob Ingugiato), a shopgirl at a local Gasmart (Jeana Crozier), a half-man/half-alligator (Rodney Reeves), and a ghost (Bobbi Seward). The themes of redemption, race, media and north vs, south are all explored in hilarious fashion, and the play features a surprise ending that playgoers don't see coming.

Florida Lighthouse Day

Book Signing

Join Downtown Books in celebrating writer/naturalist Susan Cerulean's new book at Cafe con Leche, 234 Water Street, from 5 to 7 pm on Friday, April 24. Coming to Pass, Florida's Coastal Islands in a Gulf of Change studies the genesis of the coast from Cape San Blas to Dog Island, and its inextricable link to the Apalachicola River. Illustrated with images from prizewinning nature photographer David Moynahan, Coming to Pass is the culmination of her explorations and a meditation on our relationship to the world that holds us. In 2010, Susan was instrumental in bringing together writers, musicians, and visual artists for the Unspoiled performance at the Dixie Theatre in the wake of the Deepwater

Weather Patterns on the Use of a Florida Barrier Island by Trans-Gulf Migrants." For the past two springs, a team of NOAA Environmental Cooperative Science Center (ECSC) researchers from Delaware State University have been studying the migrant songbird community on St. George Island. One of the goals of this study has been to determine whether local weather patterns are associated with the magnitude, temporal variability, and physical condition of migrants using the island as a migratory stopover site. This presentation will focus on the results of this study, while providing context for determining the ecological importance of this vulnerable coastal habitat to the annual cycle of migratory songbirds. This lecture is free and registration is not required. For more information contact Megan Lamb 850-670- 7709, email Megan.Lamb@dep.state.fl.us

The Apalachicola Art & Wine Walk

Article from the Apalachicola Times by Lois Swoboda

On Saturday, the annual Art Walk celebration of art and wine returned to Apalachicola.

About 50 artists had street displays, and more than 50 more had work hanging in Apalachicola's many galleries on the day of the event.

Merchants reported record crowds.

Harry Arnold said he had record sales at the Tin Shed on both Friday and Saturday.

"I believe it was the largest Art Walk crowd I have seen and probably the biggest crowd for any event of that type. I don't know how it could have been better," Arnold said.

Tamara Suarez, owner of Café Con Leche on Water Street, said the walkway kids model boat building, the National Weather Service and boat building demonstration throughout the day. The Apalachicola Traders' Canoe, a hand built 50-foot long vessel used between 1750-1850, recovered from the Apalachicola River will be on display at the Cotton Warehouse. Questions? Lynn Wilson, owner of the On the Waterfront Gallery and founder of Artists of the Apalachicola Area (AAA) had high praise for the event and its organizers. She had five artists demonstrating technique and displaying art in front of her gallery and an additional 50 area artists showing work inside. She said her gallery had sales of more than $3,200.

"It was wonderful. We were packed and everyone who came by stayed for at least a half hour and took time to look at everything. Some of them came back later to buy," she said.

"After the wine walk portion of the day began, people seemed to loosen up a little and many bought art. It was interesting because it was a different crowd. The people who came earlier in the day seemed a little more conservative and there were families," Wilson said. "I served wine provided by the Chamber and, when that ran out, I served some I had on hand for clients.

"Later on, local band Celtics on the Half Shell, (musical members of AAA), performed and everyone seemed to really enjoy that," she said.

Jewelry designer and silversmith Kristin Anderson reported about $3,000 in sales. Anne Eason of the Water Street Potters displayed her work on Market Street. This was her second year participating in the Art Walk and she said she thought the crowd might have been slightly smaller than last year but she had an excellent day.

Hollis Vail, owner of Artemis Gallery on Commerce Street also reported good sales. Keri Beth Hall, owner of Up the Stairs restaurant, said she had a large turnout for the wine walk that segued into a busy evening meal.

Danny Itzkovitz, owner of Tamara's Café Floridita and the Tapas Bar, said

Historic Apalachicola Home & Garden Tour

May 1st-2nd

From the canopied Shadow Lane neighborhood to the long vistas of the avenues in the historic district and the charming side streets that sequester special treasures, Apalachicola has some very exceptional treats in store for its spring tour of homes. The many renovations and restorations currently underway among the city's residences and businesses attest to community as well as personal pride. This year the houses run the gamut from imposing two-story homes to quaint cottages of yesteryear and new construction.

The featured house for the 2015 tour both of his stores were packed all evening.

is the home of Anne and Clint Eason. One of the most stately homes on Ave. C this Queen Anne-style home, constructed of local pine and black cypress, dates back to 1892. Interestingly, it was erected on the site of the former county jail. Built by local merchant Rudolph Collins, the house later became known as the Lovett house for the many decades that this large family shared these living quarters. Anne Eason comments that "This is the Collins/ Lovett house. We are blessed to be custodians. Nurturing feelings envelop us here." In the year 2000, the house was fully restored by local contractor, Bill Barnes, for former owner, Beverly Austin. The following year it was honored with the Florida State Chrysalis Award for Historic Preservation. There are many wonderful architectural details in the home including the original gingerbread, doors, fireplaces and windows. The kitchen and a room upstairs have been added, yet the integrity of the original home has been maintained. The house is enhanced by the Eason's comfortable and inviting decor and their use of a mixture of antiques and contemporary and custom-built pieces. Art work abounds from whimsical paintings and sculpture to spectacular woodcarvings and pottery by Anne Eason herself. The stylish chicken coop in the back garden houses a variety of exotic poultry. Visitors to the house will find much to delight them in this home.

Evensong service at Trinity Episcopal Church will be held on Friday, May 1 at 5:30 p.m. This service provides the traditional opening for the home tour. It will be followed by a reception to which all are invited. Homes will be open only on Saturday, May 2, from 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. Pre-sale tickets will be available at $20 until the day of the event. On Saturday, May 2, ticket sales will begin at 9:30 a.m. at $25 per ticket. A gourmet lunch will be served at Benedict Hall on the grounds of Trinity Church from 11:00 a.m.- 1:30 p.m. during the tour. In addition, a silent auction, 10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m., will be a part of Saturday's festivities. Guests to Apalachicola can enhance their weekend experience by allowing time to visit the many historical buildings and churches, museums, inns and parks that mark this historic town as a truly original locale. We welcome you to join us for the weekend and come back again and again.
